UNITED STATES' MOTION
IN LIMINE TO PRECLUDE
DEFENSE FROM COMMENTING ON LEGITIMACY OF PROSECUTION

26
27
28

1           The United States moves in limine to preclude the defense from commenting, in the 2 presence of the jury, on the legitimacy of this prosecution and lawful tactics employed in
3 the course of the prosecution.<sup>1</sup> Specifically, in opening statements on September 8, 2021,
4 defense counsel declared to the jury, “When you have the law and the facts on your side,
5 you go to civil court, when you don’t, you take people’s money so that they can’t defend
6 themselves and you bring a criminal charge.” (Doc. 1342 at 94:17-20.)

7           This was clearly a comment on the fact that the United States has lawfully seized
8 some of Defendants’ assets to preserve them for restitution and forfeiture should this Court
9 decide to order such. Likewise, it was an attempt to comment on the legitimacy of the 10 prosecution by suggesting that civil litigation is somehow fairer, and, further, that this 11 prosecution is inherently unfair simply by virtue of the fact that it is a criminal action. Such 12 statements are highly inflammatory and unfairly prejudicial, and should be precluded under 13 Rule 403.

14           If Defendants are able to make such comments, then they would essentially be 15 arguing for nullification, which is not allowed. Jury nullification arguments ask the jury to 16 violate its oath to return a verdict based solely on the evidence and the court’s instructions,
17 and instead acquit the defendants for improper reasons such as sympathy, bias, prejudice,
18 or disagreement with the law. “Nullification . . . is ‘a violation of a juror’s sworn duty to 19 follow the law as instructed by the court,’ and ‘trial courts have the duty to forestall or 20 prevent’ it, including ‘by firm instruction or admonition.’” United States v. Lewis, No. 21-21 50229, 2023 WL 1990544, at *2 (9th Cir. Feb. 14, 2023) (quoting Merced v. McGrath, 426
22 F.3d 1076, 1079-80 (9th Cir. 2005).

23           While a jury has the right to nullify, a defendant does not have the right to argue for 24 nullification. If defense counsel were to make the same arguments in the upcoming trial as

26
27           <sup>1</sup> Certification: On June 5, 2023, counsel for the United States met and conferred 28 in good faith with Defendants’ counsel regarding the relief requested in this motion, and the parties could not reach agreement. The Court has not previously considered or ruled on the motion.

1 they did in the first one, this Court should intervene and admonish the jury that such 2 arguments are improper. But now that we know that defense counsel has made such
3 arguments in the past and will likely make them again, this Court should affirmatively
4 preclude them from doing so at the outset. See United States v. Blixt, 548 F.3d 882, 890
5 (9th Cir. 2008); United States v. Sturgis, 578 F.2d 1296, 1300 (9th Cir.1978) (“Not only 6 should a judge interfere with an attorney’s closing argument when it is ‘legally wrong,’ but 7 he should also limit, for example, attorneys’ remarks outside the record or unduly
8 inflammatory.”); United States v. Sepulveda, 15 F.3d 1161, 1190 (1st Cir. 1993) (“A trial
9 judge, therefore, may block defense attorneys’ attempts to serenade a jury with the siren
10 song of nullification, and, indeed, may instruct the jury on the dimensions of their duty to 11 the exclusion of jury nullification.”).

12 Conclusion

13 The defense should be precluded from:

- 14 1. commenting on the legitimacy of a criminal action versus a civil action; and 15 2. commenting on the seizure of assets that was legally authorized in this matter.

17 Respectfully submitted this 8th day of June, 2023.
